

DIG FOUR BODIES FROM RUINS AFTER BUILDING CRASH

Firemen Search All Night in Debris of Fallen Concrete Flooring of New Structure.

TWO ARRESTS MADE.

Superintendent and Foreman Released in $10,000 Bail on Charge of Negligence.

The bodies of four men were removed early today from under the tons of concrete which gave way yesterday afternoon at Nos. 12, 14 and 16 East Eighty-seventh street, where an elaborate apartment house is under construction. In the immediate vicinity of the homes of Henry Phillips and Henry Martin Jr., on Fifth avenue, Supt. John O'Brien of No. 21 West Thirty-fourth street and Foreman Theodore Steins were arrested and admitted in $10,000 bail each by Coroner Holtzhauser to appear before him later today.

His hands bleeding and torn, his finger nails broken, Nicholas Visca gouged handfuls of concrete until early this morning from the huge pile of steel and concrete. The tears streamed from his eyes as he called: "Carlo! Carlo! Speak to me. Do you hear me? Are you alive?" to his brother whose body was buried beneath tons of debris.

Franklin he worked, not even stopping to arm himself with a shovel or other implement to help him in his frenzied effort to reach and perhaps save his brother with whom he shared his home at No. 321 East One Hundred and Fifth street, and who had been working at his side when the structure gave way. Police and firemen sought to dissuade him, but he was deaf to all persuasion. Restraining hands were placed on his shoulder and he threw them off, never letting up for an instant in his desperate effort. Police Inspector Tibus spoke to him, but Nicholas would not listen.

"Don't stop me, for God's sake don't stop me. My brother is down there and I must get him out," he cried.

At last they dragged him away and persuaded him to stand aside while expert wreckers and firemen dug away at the ruins systematically. Finally, at twenty minutes after 1 o'clock, a body was unearthed. Nicholas rushed forward and peered into the face under the glare of the calcium lights.

"It is not my brother," he spoke at last.

The body was that of Antonio Chiodo of No. 331 East One Hundred and Sixteenth street.

"I must find him, I must—I must!" shrieked Nicholas as he tore through the policemen who had allowed forward and threw himself at the debris again. But again he was stopped in his desperate labor, and stood by with feverish impatience while the wreckers continued to eat into the debris with pickaxe, crowbars and shovels.

Had Escaped at Messina.

"We were together in Messina when the earth rocked and the waters leaped out of their bed and the houses fell down," he told the group which surrounded him. "And we escaped only for this!"

At 3 o'clock the wreckers unearthed three more bodies. Carlo rushed forward.

"My brother! My brother!" he shrieked, as he threw himself across the mangled remains of Carlo, the youngest born.

The others were Vincent Navakowski of No. 321 East One Hundred and Seventeenth street, and Nicholas Samaria of No. 419 East One Hundred and seventh street, a bridegroom of two months ago.

When the twenty-five foot square section of concrete gave way on the eighth floor yesterday afternoon fifty men who had been at work in various parts of the structure had just quit. Fifteen others remained behind to earn a little extra money and were at work on the second floor when the concrete came crashing down from above, tearing away all of the concrete floorings on its way.

Eleven of the workmen had barely time enough to jump out of harm's way. The four others were directly in the path of the tons of concrete and were carried to the cellar. The steel work was all that was left standing when the heavy dust cloud had been brushed away.

Only Four Were Missing.

Battalion Chief Dougherty, who lives across the street, sent in a still alarm for Truck Company No. 12 and Engine Company No. 23, two ambulances from the Presbyterian Hospital, and the structure is being erected for the Capital Realty and Construction Company, and is to be one of the most elaborate apartment houses in this city. The contractors are Peterowski & Knapp of No. 418 East Ninety-first street and a supervising inspector on the building told Police Capt. Mariens after the accident that he had warned them not to remove the cribwork so soon.

Count Tolstol's Son and Namesake, Who Is Here to Study Our Conditions

Count Leo Tolstol's eldest son and namesake of the dead Russian novelist, and himself a sculptor of note, arrived on the Mauretania today. He will visit friends in Trenton, N. J., for awhile and then start on a tour to study conditions and life in America. This is his first visit to the New World. He is a tall man, with a thin beard and a head shaped much like that of his illustrious father. Like most educated Russians, he speaks English with scarcely a trace of accent.

WALL STREET.

This morning's early stock market contained the inertia that has been in evidence all this week. Business was restricted to the smallest proportions. About the only market feature was the firmness in Steel. The United States Steel Corporation's report of unaltered orders for February, to be published later in the day, is expected to show a decided improvement over the previous month's business.

Missouri Pacific reported a net gain of $100,52 for the month of January. Top prices were maintained in the subsequent dealings, which continued light.

Very little change occurred in the afternoon. Trading was slack until the end, when a quick rally in Canadian Pacific sent that issue up for over a one-point gain at the close.

The Steel Corporation's unaltered tonnage report for February showed an increase of 280,000 tons—about the same increase that Wall Street expected. According to Judge Gary, new orders during February averaged about 40,775 tons a day.

Total sales of stocks for the day amounted to 19,500 shares, the smallest turnover for any session this year.

LAUNDRY TERROR SHOT AT BOY BUT GIRL SCARED HIM

Couldn't Use Front Door So Got Gun to Clean Elevator Runner Out.

HAD BOTTLED COURAGE

Then Ran in Terror to Police for Protection From Telephone Operators.

Mr. Alfred Dickinson, the cultured gentleman who runs the elevator in the apartment house at No. 620 West One Hundred and Twenty-second street, near Riverside Drive, was affronted this afternoon by the appearance of Michael A. Sussman of No. 107 East One Hundred and Sixth street, delivery boy for a laundry, in the main hall of the house with a number of bundles in his arms.

"Ain't yo' ashamed of yo'self," said Mr. Dickinson. "Don't yo' know common deliv'ers of obstacles ain't allowed in this hall. G'wan down in the basement where yo' belong and send 'em up the dumbwaiter, like yo' outer do!"

Mr. Sussman replied that he was required to make collections on his deliveries and that he wasn't taking any chances with a dumbwaiter. Everybody who has had experience with the young persons who work as delivery boys in New York knows that; they usually want to follow the maid into the apartment and grab the money before it is counted out. But Mr. Dickinson was not moved by the argument. Mr. Sussman, like most laundry boys, gave way to language.

In Defense of the Lady.

"There's a white lady in wonder and shouldn't use no such language," expostulated Mr. Dickinson, pointing at the desk where Miss Elizabeth Pearson was attending the telephone switchboard.

Mr. Sussman, still using the laundry boy dialect, spoke contemptuously of the quality of any white woman who earned wages in an apartment house where he was not allowed to go upstairs to get his money. Mr. Dickinson closed his mouth with a large black fist and booted him out of the front door.

Mr. Sussman told the driver of his wagon he was excused for the afternoon. There was no time for more deliveries when the dignity of the profession was at stake. Then he went ed near the furnace, which had been lighted last night with a view of drying up the winter moisture.

The house, which is on Catherine street, was formerly owned by the late S. Foster Bradford, but was purchased by David H. Kang Jr., who converted the old building into a large Columbia building. It was later purchased by Mr. Coogan, who has occupied it several years. The house was insured for $90,000 and the furniture for $25,000.

DOCTOR IN $25,000 SUIT FOR "INTERESTING SPLEEN."

Lehane Removed It From Dead Man and Wife Brings Big Action.

Dr. Timothy D. Lehane's discovery of "a very interesting case of spleen," which caused him to dissect the body of Frank Hassard, who was thrown from a funeral coach he was driving and killed, has got him into a suit for $25,000 damages brought by Mrs. Mary Hassard, the dead man's mother.

Dr. Lehane was a Coroner's physician and performed an autopsy on the body after Hassard's death at the Harlem Hospital in April, 1907. Without consulting Mrs. Hassard or any of the relatives of the dead driver, Dr. Lehane removed the heart and spleen and took them to his office, where he preserved them in alcohol.

When Mrs. Hassard learned of this she complained to Coroner Harburger, and started suit, but the lower court dismissed her case. She appealed, and the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court held today that the law gave her a cause of action to recover damages. The case will now go to a jury.

34 FAMILIES ROUTED BY TENEMENT BLAZE.

Amateur Firemen Thought It Was Out When Explosion Gave Fresh Start.

Thirty-four families piled out of the six-story, double decked tenement at No. 231 Third avenue, the Bronx, today, when Mrs. Mary Newman, who ran a small dry goods store on the ground floor, screamed "Fire!" Mrs. Newman had discovered a blaze in a pile of papers and boxes under a counter.

Frank Kahn, owner of a butcher shop adjoining, hurried in with his clerk. They thought they had the flames beaten out when there came an explosion that blew the front windows of the dry goods shop into scrap glass and filled the whole interior with fire.

By the time the engines arrived the flames had reached an almighty at the rear and were climbing toward the top of the tenement. Deputy Chief Ahrens and all the men and apparatus that two alarms would bring fought the fire from the front, rear and roof, but before they got the best of it, the dry goods store, the butcher shop, the plumbing establishment of Abraham Nelson, next door, and the two lower floors of the building had been badly damaged. Water caused a loss to the upper floors also.

over to Amsterdam avenue, bought a large revolver, a box of cartridges and a half pint bottle of whiskey. He charged back at that apartment-house, stopping every half block to "fortify," as he explained afterward, "for his duty" with a swallow from the bottle.

By the time he reached the door he was just about able to find his way through into the hall.

"Now, yellow dog, die!" he shouted, as Mr. Dickinson stepped out of the elevator. He fired two shots. One of them hit a mirror over Miss Pearson's head. The other raked a streak of mortar out of the ceiling. Mr. Dickinson dropped to the floor, made a hard like wriggle into the elevator and started upstairs.

Afraid of the Girl.

Miss Pearson ran out of her sleeve with her eyes blazing and shook her fist at the laundry boy.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself," she cried. "Get out of here or I'll put you out myself!"

Mr. Sussman turned and fled. He did not stop running until he reached the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street police station. Breathless and swaying he staggered to the desk in front of Lieut. McNulty and gasped:

"Arrest me, quick. I've just croaked a smoke. Don't let that woman get me."

He was promptly grabbed by two detectives and hurried back to the apartment house, shrieking and resisting all the way. Then he was taken back to the station and locked up.

SEES MURPHY, THEN GAYNOR

Gov. Dix's Secretary Discusses Senatorship With Both.

John A. Mason, Gov. Dix's private secretary, called on Mayor Gaynor at the City Hall this afternoon. Inasmuch as the Mayor seldom comes to the City Hall on Friday, it was assumed that Mr. Mason called by appointment. He appeared at about the time the Mayor arrived, but they talked only a few minutes.

Previous to his visit to the Mayor, Mr. Mason had a long conversation with Charles F. Murphy. He admitted that he had mentioned the Senatorial deadlock to both Mr. Murphy and the Mayor on Friday. It was assumed that Mr. Mason called by appointment. He appeared at about the time the Mayor arrived, but they talked only a few minutes.

BRIDGE POLICEMAN FAILED TO REPORT SUICIDE OF NIECE

Death of Miss Lenihan by Gas Yesterday Investigated by Coroner To-Day.

Brooklyn Police Headquarters received a delayed report today of the suicide yesterday afternoon of Miss Mary A. Lenihan at the home of her parents, No. 161 Garfield place.

Miss Lenihan, who was twenty-three years old, was found dead at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by her uncle, Policeman John McMahon, of the Brooklyn Bridge squad. McMahon had been at the flat in the morning, and he had his lunch there at noon. Returning at 4 o'clock, he smelled gas, and, with the assistance of neighbors, forced the door of the flat. His niece was dead on the floor in a room adjoining the parlor.

Dr. John Byrne of No. 36 Sixth avenue was summoned, and last evening he notified the Coroner's Office. This morning a Coroner's physician investigated, making his report to the police. McMahon made no report of the case. Neighbors said today that the young woman had left a note for her mother explaining her act. This was denied today by all of the young woman's relatives.
